Multipolar world order

3177. PROF. SAIF-UDDIN-SOZ: Will the Minister of EXTERNAL AFFAIRS be pleased to state:

(a) whether the Russian and Chinese Presidents who met in Kremlin on 1st July, 2005 declared that the answer to most of the evils experienced by the present global society would go once a multipolar world order takes shape;

(b) whether most experts on this subject suggest India as a natural partner in the suggested scenario; and

(c) whether country is prepared for this eventuality?

THE MINISTER OF STATE IN THE MINISTRY OF EXTERNAL AFFAIRS (SHRI RAO INDERJIT SINGH): (a) to (c) On 1st July 2005 a "Joint Declaration of the Russian Federation and the People's Republic of China on the International Order in the Twenty First Century" was issued in Moscow. The declaration referred to a bilateral joint statement of 1997 between China and Russia on Global Multi-polarity and Establishment of a New Order and stated that the problems facing mankind can only be solved on the basis of universally recognized principles and norms of international law and in a fair and rational world order.

The Foreign Ministers of India, Russia and China met in a trilateral format in Vladivostok on 02nd June 2005. The three countries confirmed that they shared a common approach to key global developments in the 21st century and favoured building a just world order based on the observance of international law, equity, mutual respect, cooperation and progress towards multi-polarity.

Various opinions have been expressed in the media about the joint communique issued after the trilateral meeting in Vladivostok and the declaration after the bilateral Russia-China Summit meeting in Moscow.
